VivoMetrics Expands Scientific Advisory Board
Wednesday, April 6, 2005

Ventura-based VivoMetrics said this week that Dr. Michael Goldman, Professor of Medicine at UCLA has joined the company's Scientific Advisory Board. VivoMetrics is developing the LifeShirt System, a medical monitoring system that allows patients to be monitored for respiratory and cardiopulmonary functions. The company's FDA-cleared technology continuously collects and records blood pressure, blood oxygen, temperature, as well as EEG/EOG, and is being applied by physicians for better understanding and monitoring patient conditions.
